*We hope this fresh look at Stockwell War Memorial on its 100th anniversary
will prompt thoughts of its meaning and significance, not only as a place to remember those lost in war but also as somewhere to contemplate
the possibility of hope and renewal under any circumstance*

THE WAR DEAD

Almost a million men lost their lives in the service of the British Empire during the First World War. Most died abroad, their bodies buried near the battlefields where they fell

NO RESTING PLACE

Few people could afford to travel to visit the graves of their loved ones. In many cases, there was no grave to visit. The bodies of half a million men were never found

MAN ON A MISSION

In 1914, horrified by the haphazard treatment of the war dead, Fabian Ware, a volunteer ambulance commander, began to record the identity and location of each grave, which led to the establishment of the Graves Registration Commission and in 1917 the Imperial (now Commonwealth) War Graves Commission

BITTER SWEET

The fighting ended on the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month of 1918. In London, after joyous, wild and drunken celebrations, the mood darkened. Stockwell, along with the rest of the country, had undergone immense suffering – uncertainty, fear, deprivation and hunger – and the loss of hundreds of local men. Life had been irrevocably altered

I REMEMBER GOING TO SEE THE MASSES OF PEOPLE GATHERING IN THE STRAND. PEOPLE DANCING AND CHEERING AND DRINKING. I HAD TO WALK HOME AS THERE WERE NO BUSES. AT HOME MY MOTHER WAS CRYING BECAUSE CHRIS HAD BEEN KILLED AND WOULD NOT BE RETURNING

PERMANENT MEMORIAL

Nearly two weeks before the ceasefire of 11 November 1918, local businessman J. A. Wheeler wrote to the South London Press to publicise the project to build a memorial

SPONTANEOUS REMEMBRANCE Wooden shrines listing the names of local men were often placed outside churches. The example on the left (now lost) was at St Mark's Church, Kennington Oval, and was erected in 1916. There were temporary memorials at St Anne's in South Lambeth Road and St Michael's, Stockwell

MIXED EMOTIONS In 1920 the Brixton, Stockwell and Clapham branch of the British Legion invited over 500 children of servicemen killed in the war to a 'joy day' at the Ivy Leaf Club Hall at 299 Brixton Road (since demolished and replaced by Leys Court). Photograph from the Illustrated Press

UNPRECEDENTED It is estimated that there are over 100,000 war memorials in the UK, most of them relating to the First World War. There has never been, before or since, such a drive to create memorials to a conflict and those who died fighting it

A CENTRAL LOCATION The site chosen for the Memorial was Stockwell Triangle at the junction of Clapham Road and South Lambeth Road, the last vestige of Stockwell Common, which was described as a 'derelict district eyesore'. The land was formally conveyed to Lambeth Borough Council in 1922

THE DESIGN

In 1919 the Memorial Committee invited proposals for the design of the clock tower, with the final choice to be made by the Royal Academy War Memorials Committee

THE ARCHITECT

Frank Twydale Dear (1882–1965) grew up at 210 Lambeth Road. In the First World War he served as an accounting clerk in the Navy, later transferring to the Air Force. By the time of the 1911 census Dear was working as an architect's draughtsman at HM Office of Works. He designed only one other war memorial, at Golders Green, and later became chief architect for United Dairies, designing depots and housing for workers

THE WINNER By March 1920 eighty designs had been submitted, forty of them from qualified architects. The Royal Academy Committee decided that Frank Dear's classic design for a 45ft (13.5m) Portland stone tower best satisfied the brief for a simple monument that would complement its surroundings

THE CENOTAPH The Stockwell clock tower echoes some of the design features of the Cenotaph in Whitehall. Designed by Edwin Lutyens, the Cenotaph was unveiled on 11 November 1920 and replaced a similar wooden structure

VALENTINE'S POSTCARDS

The War Memorial Committee initially estimated £2,000 (£100,000 today) was needed to complete the project. However, after the war, as Europe set about repairing damaged infrastructure, the price of building materials rocketed

Princess Beatrice Opens Bazaar in Aid of the Erection Fund.

As part of the efforts to raise funds for the Stockwell War Memorial, a bazaar and sale was held in Clapham Public Hall High-st., Clapham, on Wednesday afternoon. The memorial is to be placed at the junction of Clapham-rd. and South Lambeth-rd., and a design has been approved.

The bazaar was opened by Princess Beatrice (attended by Capt. McIntosh), who was received by Alderman George Brittain (Mayor of Lambeth). Also present were the Marchioness Townshend, Miss Minnie Cochrane (from Scotland), Mrs. G. Brittain, Mr. H. G. Purchase, M.P. (Kennington), Mrs. Purchase, and the following members of the War Memorial Committee:—Mrs. Charles Ashton, Mrs. A. Ashton, Messrs. Wyndham, K. Wise (chairman), Phillip Bryman, Sydney Stanley, Lennard Charles, Samuel Bowler, Nuttall and Councillor May Morgan. Princess Beatrice was presented with a bouquet of flowers by little Miss Priscilla Young.

Opening the bazaar, the Princess wished success to the Fund.

Mr. Purchase, proposing a vote of thanks to the Princess and to Marchioness Townshend, said that the visit of the Princess was the first paid by Royalty to the borough for 17 years.

The Mayor seconded the vote of thanks, which was acknowledged.

Stalls were under the direction of the following:—Mr. and the Misses Bowler, Mrs. Rice, Mrs. Buckingham, Mrs. Bryman, Mrs. Harrison, Mr. James Rowland, Mrs. A. Ashton, Miss Janet Hunter, the Misses Wright, Mr. Harry Bryman, Miss Marie Lloyd, Mrs. M. A. Stanley, Mrs. Chas. Ashton, Mrs. S. H. Stanley, Mrs. Edwards. ## FAMILY BUSINESS

John Frederick Patrick (1869–1943), the son of a Battersea stonemason, lived at 41 Dalyell Road in Stockwell, and had a stonemasonry yard in Gaskell Street, off Union Road. When war was declared in 1914 orders dried up so, with a large family to support, Patrick took a job making shell casings. He returned to building as soon as business improved. One of his first jobs was to build the Stockwell tower

My father used to go to the yard and set out the stonework for the masons to work ready for the next day and, with a mate, he fixed every stone in the memorial...

When they were preparing the footings they came down on the concrete around the South London tube. In those days the trains used to come up from underground to an open space on the other side of Clapham Road...

The brickwork on the inside, backing up the stonework, is superb. It was carried out by an elderly retired bricklayer as a memorial to his sons who were killed in the war

A DOCTOR'S GIFT TO STOCKWELL.

War Memorial Clock Presented by Father of a Fallen Hero.

TRIBUTE TO A NATIVE.

The clock, which the Stockwell War Memorial Committee needed to place in the tower or memorial, and which was referred to in the "South London Press" last week, has been presented by Dr. F. Foord Caiger, of the South Western Hospital, Stockwell, as a tribute to the memory of his only son, who fell in the battle of the Somme at the age of 19. The committee are most grateful to Dr. Caiger for his prompt and generous response and feel that his gift is worth infinitely more from the motives inspiring it.

Dr. Foord Caiger's letter, addressed to Mr. S. Bowler, hon. secretary of the Memorial Committee, was as follows:—

There need be no anxiety about the clock. I will be responsible for it, and, indeed, shall be very pleased to give it as a tribute to the memory of my only son, who fell in the battle of the Somme at the early age of 19. When a war memorial was first mooted I intended offering to provide the clock, but on hearing that someone else had already done so, said nothing about it. The idea of placing a clock at the "Swan" corner appealed to me very strongly, as not only likely to prove a convenience to those living in the vicinity and to the many passer-by at a spot which has become a busy traffic centre, but a clock struck me as such a "live" and appropriate tribute to one who was born and always lived in Stockwell, and who entertained a warm affection for his home.

The committee is now desirous of proceeding at once with the work of inscribing the roll of honour in order to be ready for the unveiling ceremony, two months hence, and hope someone will offer to defray the cost. Mr. Samuel Bowler, the hon. secretary, of 282, Clapham-rd., will answer inquiries regarding the styles and cost of naming now being considered, which vary between £80 and £200.

As the unveiling date neared, a cash crisis became apparent. The total cost was more than twice the initial estimate and there was not enough money for the four-faced clock

TIME MEMORIAL Dr Frederick Foord Caiger, Superintendent of South Western Hospital in Landor Road, whose only child, 19-year-old Frederick, had been killed at the Somme in 1916, donated the clock as a tribute to him

THE SCULPTOR Chelsea-based sculptor and war veteran Benjamin Clemens (1875–1957) created the figure of Remembrance, or the goddess Minerva, carrying a laurel wreath with a broken sword of war at her feet. Clemens's work can be found on several First World War memorials, including at Cheadle Hulme in Cheshire, and Harrow, north London

THE UNVEILING

Wednesday 3 May 1922 in Stockwell was a day of grief and solemn drama. Almost four years after a memorial was first proposed, the building was about to be formally dedicated

AN EMOTIONAL SERVICE

While dignitaries and prominent local figures prepared themselves in the Palladium Cinema opposite the Memorial, musicians took their places in front of Stockwell Terrace. At 2.30pm the police band began to play, after which the choir of Spurgeon's Stockwell Orphanage sang. A hush fell over the crowd, broken only by the occasional clanking of a passing tram. The ceremony began at 3pm, when the crowd sang the hymn O God Our Help in Ages Past, a lesson from the Bible was read and the Orphanage choir sang once more. After the unveiling, buglers of the East Surrey Regiment sounded the Last Post and the Reveille, the crowd sang the hymn For All the Saints, and the Bishop of Kingston formally dedicated the building

ANTICIPATION Hours before the unveiling was due to begin, people began to gather in the Stockwell Triangle for the service of dedication, filling pavements and front gardens and watching from the windows of surrounding houses. Union Jacks covered the four sides of the Memorial

THE MOMENT At 3.25pm, after the service, Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, released the flags and declared: 'To the glorious and lasting memory of the men of Stockwell, who laid down their lives for King and Country.' Captain Wallace M. Young, chairman of the Memorial Committee, stood to the right; John Patrick, the builder in charge of construction, was in the crowd to the left, hat in hand

A DAY TO REMEMBER The Brixton Free Press reported that 'The weather was not quite so propitious as could have been desired, but happily during the actual ceremonial, rain, which fell in heavy showers before and after, held up, and the brief but impressive ceremony passed off without a hitch of any kind'

ORDER OF SERVICE The service started with Chopin's Funeral March, played by a police band

TIME PASSES

After the ceremony, the clock was started. At this point the downpour that had threatened all afternoon dispersed the crowd, who drifted away or deposited their floral tributes, and the dignitaries left to take tea at the York Restaurant in the Palladium Cinema

NAMES AND FACES The men came from a wide range of backgrounds. About half were skilled, with many of these in the printing trade, a major employer in Stockwell. Most were volunteers and conscripts, but there were some professional soldiers. Christians predominated but there was also a handful of Jews. None identified so far are known to be people of colour. Most of the photographs shown here have been provided by the families. Others are from newspapers, rolls of honour and yearbooks

THE 574 NAMES

The men named on the Memorial had to have lived or been associated with Stockwell within a radius of about half a mile of the clock tower

SCALE OF LOSS

The Memorial lists the men in alphabetical order and gives only initials and surname. A few names were added at a later, unknown, date. It is not a complete list as some bereaved families did not put names forward. The addresses, where we have been able to discover them, are the 'last known' of the men or their families, taken from records

Awareness of the significance of the Memorial has grown in recent years, boosted by the centenary of the First World War, the renovation works on the building and an understanding that the site provides a focus for remembrance and reflection of all kinds

PERSONAL

FEELINGS People have different ways to remember their dead, including leaving an object at a significant site

VISITING The Memorial continues to be of particular importance to relatives. Here on a visit to the Memorial in the 1980s, David Coleman, great-grandson of Charles Frederick Parker, points to his name

WE WILL REMEMBER THEM Stockwell Memorial is the designated Lambeth Remembrance site, attended every Remembrance Day by the Mayor. A short service takes place in which prayers are said, the Last Post and Reveille are sounded and wreaths laid

VARIETY OF STYLES

The expression of grief, sorrow and relief after the First World War in the form of memorials can be seen as a major public art project of huge diversity

THEY SHALL HAVE STARS AT ELBOW AND FOOT;
THOUGH THEY GO MAD THEY SHALL BE SANE,
THOUGH THEY SINK THROUGH THE SEA
THEY SHALL RISE AGAIN;
THOUGH LOVERS BE LOST LOVE SHALL NOT;
AND DEATH SHALL HAVE NO DOMINION.

FROM DYLAN THOMAS (1914–1953)

‘AND DEATH SHALL HAVE NO DOMINION’ 1933

TAKING COVER
With the arrival of V1 and V2 guided rockets in summer 1944, the deep-level shelters were opened to admit civilians, shown here queuing at Stockwell. A second entrance to the shelter is in Studley Road

COMMUNITY

Twenty years after the unveiling of the War Memorial, in 1942, a new structure appeared next to it – the rotunda, an entrance to a deep-level bomb shelter designed to accommodate up to 8,000 people

HOME FROM HOME The shelters were fitted out with bunks, toilets, air purifiers, recreation rooms, canteens and washing facilities

TUNNEL VISION

The shelter, one of five following the route of the Northern Line, was constructed as two parallel tunnels 4.8m (16ft) wide and split horizontally into upper and lower levels. A plan to join the tunnels after the Second World War to create a high-speed train line was abandoned as too expensive

COURAGE OF HER CONVICTIONS The mural commemorates the life of Violette Szabo (1921–1945), who lived at 8 Burnley Road in Stockwell and was awarded the George Cross for bravery in the Second World War. A plaque to Szabo was unveiled by actress Virginia McKenna, who played her in the film Carve Her Name With Pride. There are also portraits of famous people with Stockwell links, including actor Roger Moore (1927–2017), who grew up in the area, and artist Vincent Van Gogh (1853–1890), who lodged for six months in Hackford Road

NEW BEGINNINGS

The mural includes a depiction of the Empire Windrush, the ship which in 1948 brought returning service personnel and civilians from the Caribbean to Britain. Some of the passengers settled in Stockwell and Brixton

WAR PAINT The rotunda was first decorated in 1999 by artists Brian Barnes (1944–2021), left, and Myra Harris, who based the themes on suggestions from students at Stockwell Park School (now Platanos College)

RENEWAL

The Memorial was Grade II listed in 1991. This century has seen major changes to the site: the addition of the Bronze Woman statue, the refurbishment of the clock tower and the reconfiguration (once again) of traffic flow around the monument

THE PAST IS THE FUTURE The murals on the Rotunda were refreshed by volunteers in 2013, after which the Lambeth Mayor, the late Mark Bennett, dedicated a plaque

CAMPAIGN

In 2011 the clock tower was refurbished and the surrounding area remodelled

BRONZE WOMAN The statue, created by Ian Walters and finished by Aleix Barbat, is inspired by a poem by Cécile Nobrega, who lived in Lambeth. The 10ft (3m) high sculpture of an Afro-Caribbean woman holding aloft a child was unveiled in 2008 for the 200th anniversary of the end of the transatlantic slave trade, and celebrates the contribution of the Afro-Caribbean community to London

WHY ARE WAR MEMORIALS IMPORTANT?

Memorials are a focal point for remembrance for both individuals and communities, particularly on occasions such as Remembrance Sunday and anniversary events.

As communities change, they also offer an insight into the history of an area. Memorials that list names are unique historical touchstones, linking our past to our present

The Friends aim to keep the history of the War Memorial alive and to share it in the widest way. Every effort has been made to include accurate information in this exhibition – so please let us know if you know of any inaccuracies or wish to inform us of additional information. We welcome your memories and thoughts.

THESE WERE OUR SONS

Stories from Stockwell War Memorial

NAOMI LOURIE KLEIN

In 1922 the names of over 574 local men who perished in the First World War were carved into the panels of the Stockwell War Memorial. Who were they? Their stories and their secrets, discovered through family letters, personal accounts and official records, are told here for the first time

“The shock of reading of the sheer numbers lost, in our own neighbourhood, and the youth of so many of the fallen, makes me look at our war memorial with renewed humility and gratitude. This book deserves a place in every Stockwell home”

JOANNA LUMLEY

“... makes a memorial come alive – and records lives that deserve to be, as the hope remains, Not Forgotten”
